

IFTF, MacDiarmid and StratEDGY

Terms and Conditions

Public, sharable, and re-usable

The Foresight Engine is a public good. Everything created or contributed here is added to a public database that can be freely accessed by anyone, anywhere.

The Foresight Engine operates under principles of the Creative and Science Commons. All content created in the lab is automatically published under the Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-Share Alike 3.0 license.

<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/3.0/>

Privacy

Our privacy policy is simple. We won't share your contact or private information with anyone outside the Institute for the Future, the MacDiarmid Institute and StratEDGY Strategic Foresight. The Institute for the Future will only use your email address to contact you with updates you request. The MacDiarmid Institute and StratEDGY Strategic Foresight may contact you to alert you to future games or invite you to participate in research about your experience in playing the game. You are not obliged to participate in any further activity after you have finished playing Pounamu.

We may quote you

Anything you create on the Foresight Engine may be quoted in whole or in part in forecasts or future reports by the Institute for the Future, the MacDiarmid Institute and StratEDGY Strategic Foresight. Anything we quote will be attributed to your Foresight Engine username. Any content produced within the game may also be analyzed by the Science in Context Group at Victoria University and published in academic fora. For more information about this research, see

<http://www.victoria.ac.nz/scps/research/research-groups/science-in-context>